New Trustees First Session

Carmel's new board of trustees is in office and has begun to function.

Following a session of the old board last Monday night, at which some fragments of unfinished business were disposed of, including passage of the city treasurer's salary increase and the reading of communications, the returns of the recent election were canvassed and approved.

The president of the old board then swore in City Clerk Saidee Van Brower for her second term of office, and she in turn swore in the newly elected trustees.

The board then proceeded to organization. Trustee C. O. Gould placed in nomination for president Trustee William T. Kibbler, who was unanimously elected.

Commissionerships were announced as follows: Streets and Highways, C. O. Gould; Fire and Police, H. P. Larouette; Health and Safety, J. B. Dennis; Light and Water, Miss H. W. Parkes.

Then they got down to business. First came consideration of the application of Lotta A. Shipley to erect a $250,000 hotel near the beach, facing Carmel Bay. Trustee Dennis remarked that as there were no specifications on file, there should be no haste in granting the permit. This brought from Arthur T. Shand, speaking for Mrs. Shipley, the statement that the hotel promoters wanted some assurance that the permit would be granted. This assurance was not forthcoming.

Former Trustee Newberry suggested that in considering the permit attention be given the matter of sewerage disposal. This question, Shand said, had already been taken up with the federal government.

The three applications on file for rental of the bath-house this summer are in the hands of a committee and recommendation will be made at the May 6th meeting. The applicants are Earl Ammerman, Mrs. Harry Turner and W. M. Basham.

On the initiative of Trustee Dennis, and concurred in by the full board, two new ordinances will be prepared by City Attorney Argyll Campbell. The first is a building ordinance, badly needed by the city, and the other has to do with keeping clean and tidy vacant lots and other property.

Trustees Larouette and Dennis were appointed a committee to confer with City Engineer H. D. Severance concerning the proposed new sewer system.

Where Next?

"My greetings to you," writes Miss Louise Conger, "and to announce the arrival of the Pine Cone in China—the first bit of real home news, Carmel news. My sister mailed it to me and I've read it until I know it all by heart. The Pine Cone in China—where next?"

Today They Reach Half Century Mark

Today, at the home of their son, Edgar D. Hand, in San Francisco, Judge and Mrs. Joseph W. Hand, Carmel's best known residents, are celebrating their golden wedding anniversary.

Over fifty guests, including children, grand-children, and great grand-children, will be present to facilitate the venerable pair on their half century of married life, and legions of their friends throughout California will be there in spirit.

Joseph W. Hand and Mary E. Dickson were married in San Francisco in 1874. Rev. Mr. Lathrop, who performed the ceremony, was one of the most distinguished clergymen of his time.

After a brief residence in San Francisco the couple moved to Alameda, where they resided for many years. In 1903 they came first to Carmel on a vacation trip, and in 1906 they established their home here, and have been here ever since.

In 1862 Mr. Hand was a pony express rider, his route being from Virginia City to Ragtown, a distance of fifty miles.

And now a little secret. "How old are the Hands?" some of you ask. They are not old, but the Judge will

Outside Slant on Carmel Zoning

A column-a-day writer on a Stockton paper, Miss L. Claire Sheridan, who once spent a brief vacation in Pebble Beach, heard or read about Carmel's zoning election, so she sat herself down and tore off this interesting bit:

"Carmel, standardization and hot dogs won at Carmel-by-the-Sea. The artist element was defeated by two votes. They call it progress, the ones who won and, of course, the majority rules. What they've won is the right to build shops, eating houses, pop-corn stands, anything, any place they like and to make Carmel-by-the-Sea a beach summer resort. What the so-called 'progressive' element want are lots of summer visitors spending their money and making Carmel boom for the realtor, the carpenter, the grocer, etc."

"What it means to the artist colony, the people with little money but good taste who founded Carmel, is exactly the same as it after Stockton people, or any people, had built them a lovely residence section, with lawns, flowers, etc., a group of men should get control of the council and decide that cement would be better where the lawns were, that what the residence section really needed was some eating-houses and butcher shops and a factory or two on its vacant lots that would bring in money. How'd we like that for progress? How'd we like to see lovely Lake Tahoe turned into a continuous whang-doodle of patent music, cement walks, casinos and what some might regard as improvements but which to others would be nothing short of a crime."

"That is the way it must seem to the people who built Carmel from nothing, built it the way they wanted it, with the beauty of natural woods and shrubbery, of natural if dusty, winding paths, with a sweep of clean white beach the way God made it; who built their attractive homes, retreats in this quiet paradise, and now see it in control of those who want their creation commercialized and made inviting for the summer mob."

"Probably the people who won are not in the least malicious. No doubt they believe they are doing the right thing and will give the beauty of Carmel to a greater number. They probably do not even see that the beauty of Carmel was given it by the taste of these artists who made it the one place that is different."

"The best comfort their friends can offer the artists is that they can sell out if Carmel booms, and move on into the wilderness where commerce will be slower about catching up. But they are not rich, these people who built them a coast city beautiful; not rich like the people on the adjoining Pebble Beach, whose taste will not be flouted by commerce, just because they have wealth. And it takes a long time to create a new retreat, longer than the time left to most of these original Carmelites."

"And I don't see why I am worry for I don't own even a seashell there, ing over the artists and over Carmel, but the whole thing affects me like seeing something beautiful trampled underfoot, as if taste, beauty, refinement, quiet were of no worth and the only things that count are dollars and noise."

Another "Greatest Show on Earth"

By an Innocent Bystander

Zip and go!
Darn good comedy!
Peaches and pulchritude!
Lifting, melodious music!
Costumes rich and lush!
Snappy, well executed chorus work!
A show that'll knock your eye out!
That's the Carmel Follies of 1924.
Saw a rehearsal the other night.
Had a hunch it would be good—but it's better than that. It's a finished production right now—one that would more than get across on the "big time."

Take an inside tip: get your tickets pronto! If you don't move fast you'll be on the outside—not even looking in. For, take it from me, this show is due for two full houses next Friday and Saturday, and then some.

Two years ago the soldiers' memorial vaudeville bill packed both Arts and Crafts Hall and Manzanita Theatre to the doors on the same night. Carmel's intelligence and unintelligence agreed that it was "some show." It was. But, in my not very humble opinion, this one has it completely backed off the boards.

Charley Van Riper was largely responsible for putting the first show across, and he and Arthur Cyril are assuming full responsibility for this one. It's a good deal of responsibility to assume, too, considering some of the stuff they're going to slip over on an unsuspecting public.

Charley and Arthur are not offering any apologies, however. Fact is, they seem sort of chesty about it—and kind of nervous, too. Just as if they're not quite sure whether they should be killed or congratulated when it's all over—or both.

Anyhow, no mercy should be shown Steve Glassell, the despicable villain, and Kit Cooke, the snaky adventurer, in that sterling mellow-drammer entitled "The Villain." The dirty work this precious pair pull off on Papa Cyril and Ma MacGowan and Baby Schweninger, is enough to make one's blood boil. They should be hissed from the stage—so oil up your sibilants and bring them along.

There are thirteen big acts; count 'em—thirteen. Too many to comment on in this article, so I'll mention just a few of the high spots.

There's going to be two orchestras; and honest-to-goodness boxing match between clever exponents of the mazy art; a beauty chorus that would make Flo Ziegfeld quit like a dog; a quartette made up of Roberta Leitch, Grace Mora, Sam Miller and Cal Luther—nuf sed; a mystery act that will give you the jim-jams; a—but what's the use?

An Evening of Peninsula Talent

Next Wednesday at the Y hut on Prescott street, below Lighthouse avenue, in New Monterey, there is to be an entertainment of various kinds of talent—all of the peninsula.

The affair is being arranged by ladies of the Humane Society in Monterey and Pacific Grove, and already a most attractive program has been made.

This is the first of a series of evenings to be held at this place, each evening to be of local talent and the proceeds to go toward some deserving cause. The first evening's proceeds will go towards the upkeep of the animal shelter.

COMMUNITY LOYALTY

Have you ever stopped to consider the fact that loyalty to community interests is the highest form of patriotism? Show us the man who is loyal and true to every interest of his own community and we will show you in that same individual a man in whom his country can report absolute confidence in any emergency that calls for his allegiance.

On the other hand, the man who is careless and unconcerned for the interests of his community is most apt to display the same spirit of indifference toward his government or his state should any serious danger threaten either.

Try to imagine an entire state composed of innumerable communities welded and cemented into a symmetrical whole, each striving to excel the others, but each, from its own local loyalty, developing a broader and deeper loyalty that reaches out and embraces the whole.

This would be brought about if we could see that we owe allegiance to our own people, but that the prosperity and success of others is in no wise a detriment to us, but rather a help, that if each community would develop itself to the utmost—materially, mentally and morally—none would need be envious of others, neither would any need to aught but to detract from another's interest.

Let us develop community loyalty to the full—the highest possible form of patriotism.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT AND JOHN MUIR

In 1903 Theodore Roosevelt came to this coast and went alone for three days into the Sierra Nevadas with John Muir. No one knew the significance of those three days until Roosevelt acted.

Roosevelt had his eyes opened wide by John Muir. When he became President there were forty-six million acres set aside as land for public purposes; when he went out of office there was one hundred and forty-eight million acres; five national parks at his start and ten at his completion of office. Roosevelt made that deep canyon of Colorado a national monument, and whoever heard of a canyon as a monument until John Muir called and Theodore Roosevelt listened!

Carmel-by-the-Sea

By a Carmel Visitor

When God first formed the bold coast line
From Highlands north to Monterey,
He made it rugged and serpentine
And placed, therein, a crescent bay.

Point Lobos reared its craggy head
To challenge the angry Southern Sea,
And to allay the seaman's dread,
Point Cypress formed the Northern Lea.

Ages and ages, old Ocean's spray
Spread vitalizing dew hereon;
At some remote, historic day
Sprang, here, the Cedars of Lebanon.

The northwest gales, with fury strong,
Attacked these twigs of forest life
Which bent and swayed, to surf's dull song,
In constant, battling, upright strife.

Disintegrated rocks were rolled
Backward and forth, on Ocean's bed;
Of shapely forms these did unfold,
In colors, black and white and red—

Which sportively do smile and play,
Along the sands, in sight and reach
Of eyes and hands, in Carmel Bay,
Forming, thereon, the pebbled beach.

Shapely, grim and scraggy trees
Now line this beautiful reach of coast;
On Cypress Point, the traveller sees,
In moonlight stillness, the cypress ghost.

Majestic mountains form a background,
With valleys and hills and towering pines,
The sunset glow and surf, profound,
Enliven these beautiful coast outlines.

The Golden West's fair beauty spot;
Of silvery surf and verdured lea;
Thou inspiration, for art and thought,
Quiet, restful, Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Nature's feast for thought and eyes;
Artists and Authors' Paradise.

Ford Dealers Have New Sales Plan

The new Ford dealers' payment plan recently instituted, brings the pleasures and opportunities to be had from car ownership to many families who have never had the opportunity to purchase an automobile heretofore.

The new plan involves a payment of approximately one-third of the purchase price down; the balance due in eighteen equal monthly installments. Prior to the use of this time payment contract, Ford dealers were calling for one-third down payment with the balance payable in twelve equal monthly installments.

It can readily be understood that the reduced payments make it possible for families to buy now and enjoy the use of their car this spring and summer instead of being compelled to wait until sometime in the future.

The Ford dealers announced the eighteen month contract in view of the fact that this country shows a population of approximately ninety million, with twenty million families having an income less than $1,000 a year. To purchase an automobile, and in some instances as many as three in a family being able to make payments towards the purchase of a Ford car if convenient time payments were submitted to them.

Financiers of large corporations are arranging to assist Ford dealers in developing this new class of business.

Spring Fashions Flaunt the Scarf

The scarf's the thing—this spring. Fashion flaunts its favorite everywhere—on hats, dresses, blouses, coats and suits, either as a part of the garment or as a separate accessory. There are scarfs for all occasions. For sports wear hats made with scarfs to match hold the center of the stage, and often the hat trimming is extended into scarf ends, as shown in the picture above.

 Your Conversation  MEANDER

The "Meander" was a river in Asia Minor which was proverbial in ancient geography for the twisting, turning course which it followed to the sea. It has given its name to the noun "meander," which means a winding course, and to the verb "meander," which means to wander about with frequent turnings.

Motorists like to strike a road composed of tar-bound macadam. They are indebted to John Loudon Macadam, a Scotch engineer, for this excellent type of road. PINE NEEDLES

Contractor Percy Parkes has under way the Florence O'Neill residence on Carmelo street. Chalk rock will enter into its construction.

The tea which was held in community hall on Tuesday was quite a social and financial success. The treasury of St. Anne's Guild is $44 richer.

Carmel visitors in Paso Robles last Saturday and Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. William C. Farley and daughter, H. E. Nye and P. J. Gartland.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Mathews of San Jose spent last week in the Lowell cottage here. They had as guests Mrs. Herbert Townsend of their home city.

Tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 Ida Mansfield-Wilson will lecture on "The Message of the Aquarian Age." Mansfield-Wilson cottage, Dolores between 8th and 9th.

New Business Concern Launched in Carmel

A new enterprise which Carmel has acquired is the Shop of Electrical Appliances, located on Ocean avenue next to Basham's. This branch of the Hazelton Electrical Appliance Co., of which Herman J. Bremer is a member, is the fifth to be established on the coast.

This business bids fair to become one of the important activities in Carmel. There will be on display a complete line of modern electrical equipment used in the home. The shop is under the able management of Mrs. Lillian de P. Bremer, with the cooperation of L. A. Craig as salesman. Mr. Craig is well known on the peninsula.

Hygiene Conference Here Next Month

The State Bureau of Child Hygiene of the California Board of Health and the Department of Physical Education are planning a month of examinations of children who are about to enter school.

These examinations will be conducted by qualified physicians, dentists and nurses. Nearly all the counties of the state during the month ending May 15. Without cost advantage may be taken of this opportunity to determine if children are fit for the first grade.

One of these conferences will take place at Arts and Crafts Hall on Monday, May 12, 9 to 4. Dr. R. O. Main, county health officer, and Dr. H. J. Hollison of this city will be in charge. Bring the kiddies.

We are Proud of Our Chorus and Orchestra

An audience that taxed the capacity of Arts and Crafts Theatre gathered on Friday night of last week to hear John Stainer's masterful oratorio, "The Crucifixion," and other numbers of a program of sacred music.

Too much credit cannot be given Fenton P. Foster and his associates—the soloists, the chorus and the musicians—for the splendid manner in which the difficult numbers were rendered.

It is the hope of all Carmel music lovers that the splendid organization brought together and directed by Mr. Foster will be retained, to the end that Carmel may have a permanent orchestra and chorus, giving frequent concerts.

Shaw-Naftzger

Miss Clarissa Chamberlain Shaw and Frederick Earle Naftzger were married last Monday. The ceremony took place in the new Shaw cottage near the inn, in the presence of a few friends and relatives, including the father of the bride.

The bride is the sister of Miss Ella Shaw, owner of Highlands Inn. Mr. Naftzger is a Los Angeles insurance man, where the couple will reside after a brief honeymoon in San Francisco and vicinity.

Rev. Fred Sheldon tied the knot.

EXAMPLE

By THOMAS A. CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

ERICKSON is not particularly well known in his community. He is a quiet fellow who does his work well, who lives a clean, wholesome life, and who thinks of the other fellow quite as seriously as he does of himself.

He came in to see me last spring rather worried about something.

"I haven't done much for the town or in church," he confessed. "Some of the other fellows are out in all sorts of community activities, some of them are real leaders, but I don't seem to amount to much."

I knew that he worked regularly and well, that he was unselfish, that his life was the sort that we should like men to live, and that it would be possible for me to say of his friends, "If you'll follow Erickson's example, I shall be satisfied."

There was not a man who knew him who was not made better by watching Bob. There was no one, no matter how indifferent he seemed, who was not influenced by his example, and I told him so. Bob never shirked; he never descended to low, vulgar talk; he did his duty regularly as he saw it, without preaching, and this had its effects.

Murphy was different. He was a loafer, satisfied if he merely got by. He was selfish, thoughtless, and never did any serious, honest work that he could evade. He slept until noon when he had no work to do, and not infrequently when he did have, alleging illness as an excuse. His talk was careless and his ideals flexible.

"I don't hurt anyone but myself," he always protested. But it was not true. Everyone has his influence, and Murphy had his, and it was never good. The fact that he did little work and still kept out of trouble influenced younger fellows to try the same tactics. When he spent his evenings in questionable pleasure, they saw no reason why they should wear themselves out with unnecessary industry. The presence of Murphy lowered the intellectual and moral tone wherever he went.

Most of us preach very well; it is rather expected of us; it's our job, and preaching in a way is not a bad thing. It is example, however, which counts most.

Vivacious Sports Coat in Large, Soft Plaid

Always heretofore, in each season's procession of new fabrics, we have looked for a little band of plaids, but this spring they appeared all along the line in every sort of material. They are lending much vivacity to the semi-sport coats which answered for all-round wear. Ample sleeves and collars, large patch pockets and swagger style make these coats popular.

Men Sent to Camp by Business Concerns

A precedent among San Francisco business concerns in co-operating with the War Department in the development of the Army's citizens' military training camps was established when a large manufacturing concern delegated two of its employees to attend the Del Monte Camp in June.

The camp opens on June 26 and extends until July 25.

It is believed that this move will be the signal for other great concerns to follow suit and send employees to the camp. If the student attends these camps three years in succession he is given ranking in the reserve corp of the Army.

Business men generally, says a recent Army communication, realize that young employees sent to the camps will emerge not only better soldiers but better citizens and employees.

Summer School Session to Have Strong Faculty

If it can be said that an educational enterprise such as is to be promoted in Carmel jointly by the University of California and by the Theatre of the Golden Bough, has a star faculty, then we will have it here this summer.

Every member of the faculty has won distinction in his or her particular line.

The wide interest that is being manifested both in the university extension course and in the course under the auspices of the Golden Bough, prompts the Pine Cone to inaugurate this week a series of sketches concerning the work of the various members of the faculty. Of Blanding Sloan we will tell first.

As an artist of the theatre, Blanding Sloan first made himself known when he designed the scenery and costumes and directed the lighting of the first twenty-one plays of the Players' Workshop, Chicago, one of America's first successful little theatres. More recently he has become permanently identified with the theatre as art director of the Earl Carroll Theatre; designed for such producers as Stuart Walker, George Foster Platt, and for the "Greenwich Village Follies." His model for Henry Savage's "Shavings" and a group of his designs were exhibited in the Metropolitan Museum of Fine Arts, New York City. The Bourgeoisie Galleries, New York, also exhibited his theatrical designs and models as those of one of America's foremost modern artists. He is one of the few artists of the theatre who is known at once for his originality of design and for his ability as his own technical director.

But it is not alone in the theatre that Sloan has distinguished himself. His etchings and paintings appeared for successive seasons in the exhibitions of the Chicago Society of Etchers and the Art Institute while he was still a student at the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts, in which institution he later became teacher in color composition. Though he is primarily interested in doing his own work, he has also proved himself in the field of teaching. Rabindranath Tagore chose Mr. Sloan as teacher of his protegee, Mukul Chandra Dey, Hindu artist. Mr. Sloan also had the good fortune to be closely associated with George Senseney in teaching the classes of this noted color etcher.

Sloan is at present taking a holiday from his work in the theatre in order to devote his time to painting and etching, and making a leisurely tour of the world while so doing. Before proceeding to the Orient he has been spending some time in California.

"Photopoint," or drawing on photographic plate, is a designation coined by Sloan. The medium was discovered by him and his studio mate, Stanislaus Szukalski, Polish sculptor; and Sloan, while traveling, has recently developed it as a sort of substitute for etching, because photographic plates and the photographer's darkroom are available in even the remotest corners of the earth, whereas the required paraphernalia for etching, copper plates and printing press are more rarely found.

PINE NEEDLES

ORDINANCE NO. 56

Captain Jesse D. Derrick of the Monterey Presidio has been deputized by the Department of Agriculture to act in connection with the present outbreak of foot and mouth disease. The deputization has particular reference to the issuance of permits for the shipments of livestock and pets.

Last Monday evening's press dispatches conveyed the news of the death of two very prominent personages—Marie Corelli, novelist, died at Stratford-on-Avon, of heart disease; and at a hotel in Pittsburgh, Pa., Eleanora Duse, Italian actress, breathed her last, a victim of influenza.

The Monterey County Builders' Association had an interesting dinner and informal business session at La Playa last Wednesday evening. Carmel members of this organization are: M. J. Murphy, L. E. Gottfried, Percy Parkes, G. W. Reamer, Harry Turner, T. B. Reardon and Ray Ramsay.

A group of alumni of Boston Tech who reside in San Francisco and vicinity are planning to invade Carmel next Friday, is the word received by Dr. A. E. Barton.

The local fire department quickly subdued a brush fire Monday night. So fast and efficient was the firemen work that they received high commendation from James W. Morgan, U. S. fire inspector at Mare Island, who observed their work.
